After the Grip

Heart Palpitation, Dizziness, Numbness

Hood's Made a Decided Change.

"C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass."

"Sixty-three years ago I had a severe attack of the grip, which left me weak and prostrated. I had heart difficulty, so common after this complaint, and would have palpitation and dizzy spells, after which I grew cold, numb and could not feel my pulse beat.

I was also troubled with dyspepsia, and it was thought I could not recover. I could scarcely eat anything without sickness afterwards. I took many medicines, but felt in no way relieved, and thought it was useless to try any more.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

But being urged to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, I thought at last I would give it a trial. After using it a time, I noticed a change in my health for the better, and have so rapidly recovered that I feel better than for several years."

The new tariff is worrying the life out of the protectionists. They are very much astonished at the way it works, and it takes lots of Republican ingenuity to explain things. Wool going up, and sugar going down, the lumber business prospering, and increasing, new tin mills being erected, cotton and woolen mills running on full time, some of them night and day, and more being built, capital hunting for investment with a confident feeling of returning prosperity. All this is a little too much for our Republican friends. They can't explain it, and what is worse they can't stand it.

J. H. BRADLEY writes the American Press Association:

"When an administration is defeated at the middle term elections, as it nearly always is—there have been but two exceptions in 60 years—there is always a great cry that its policy has been condemned by the people and a prophecy that said policy will be changed, but the oldest politician cannot remember a case when the prophecy was fulfilled. The party in power invariably goes straight on, and if it changes at all it is only to become a little more aggressive. Its leaders assume that the last election was a mere freak on the part of the people and reason like that sinner in the old story who was up a tree when Noah's ark floated by: 'Go on with your damned old saw. This is only a big freshet anyhow.' As Lincoln grew more radical after losing the close states in 1862 and Grant more eager for resumption after the 'landslide' of 1874, so it may be taken for granted that Cleveland will urge his views more forcibly next winter than last."

Who Owns the Wedding Presents?

It is now decided that the wife is entitled to own all the wedding presents, including the suspenders, collar buttons and neckties, provided she can prove she was the drawing card at the marriage ceremony. This is the latest victory for the end-of-the-century woman. It practically makes her sole owner of the pictures on the wall and chairs about the tables the motto over the door and pickle dishes in the cupboard. The brass bed, the album in the spare room, the perfume bottles and the pin-cushions are hers and go with her when she wears of the excitement of the household and election and decides to return to the delight of her bachelorhood.

This important ruling was made by a Chicago court in a divorce case, as the judge pulled down his spectacles and gazed solemnly over a pile of presents that completely covered the bar of justice and formed a fortress between him and the two people who wanted the accumulations of ten years divided according to the statutes. The justice was grieved that all the trinkets of tender memory and no value in an inventory should thus be lodged into court, and, with the wisdom of Solomon, who wanted to divide the baby between the contending mothers, he pleaded with the litigants to take half and half. The wife refused, claiming she had a right to nearly all the list of evidence, and her lawyer sustained her contention. This decision will settle a long mooted question. Most men possessed the idea that they had at least an equal share in the presents received at the wedding but with a judicial decision to the contrary the husbands will be a trifle more respectful to "his wife's presents."

The Mexico-Indian actress Ogarita and a capable corps of players, headed by the eminent actor, Karl Bayard Steers will open a three nights engagement at the Opera House commencing Monday, Nov. 19th. The following commendatory of this young Mexican artist:

A good audience greeted Ogarita last night. The enthusiasm of the audience betrayed the fact that the admiration for the star was not assumed. Her company is more than clever. The excellent qualities of her acting, its intelligence, ease, finish, minute care and refinement shines gratefully in this day of stage coarsening.—Chester (Ill.) Republican.

GREAT R. R. PROJECT

Connecting New York With San Francisco.

Napoleon on the Route!

We are allowed to reproduce the following letter, through the kindness of R. W. Cahill:

ATLANTIC & PACIFIC RY. CO. CO., 325 Western Union Building, CHICAGO, Sept. 17, 1894.)

For the past four years, the Atlantic & Pacific Railway Construction Company of Chicago, Illinois, has been preparing for the construction of a double track air line railway from New York to San Francisco.

The great highway, as now surveyed between New York and Chicago, will shorten the distance 200 miles over all other railroads, while the distance between Chicago and San Francisco will be shortened over 400 miles. The projectors have contemplated from the very inception of the enterprise the making it an integral part of the Government. A bill is now being prepared to be presented to our National Congress, at next winter's session, placing the entire enterprise under the supervision of the Government for its endorsement of the bonds of the road.

All traffic over it shall be at a cost of interest and running expenses, while greatest speed, saving of time, and modern comforts may be accorded to the people at a minimum fare and cost.

The line from New York to San Francisco (2700 miles) will cost $400,000,000. If the road is built by an independent corporation the securities will bear interest at 5 per cent, and are contracted for in Europe at 90 per cent of their face value. With our Government's endorsement of the bonds at 3 per cent, for which the Syndicate have contracted, we will save not only the 10 per cent of their face value, selling them at par instead of 90 cents, but we shall also save annually 2 per cent in interest, making a saving annually of $8,000,000 from New York to San Francisco.

The interest on the bonds for the first division, from New York to Chicago, being $375,000,000 annually, will be small sum for our Government to guarantee, and will convince the whole nation that the enterprise, from ocean to ocean, will be a complete success. The interest on the entire line across the continent will be $13,000,000 annually, and will be but a small consideration for the advantages accruing to the Government in the one instance of mail service.

It will be the one grand, economic event of the close of the Nineteenth century.

The actual construction of the line will be commenced in all the states between New York and Chicago by the middle of next year, and will be completed and in operation in the year 1900.

The success of the enterprise from New York to Chicago being assured, the reception of the bill at our coming session of congress, already sanctioned by some of our ablest and most conservative representatives and senators, will receive the attention of all interested in the building of the road from Chicago to San Francisco.

PORT ARTHUR FALLEN.

One of the Greatest Navies in the World Captured by Japan.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—A dispatch received here from Shanghai says that the Japanese captured Port Arthur yesterday morning after meeting with a feeble resistance on the part of the Chinese. Port Arthur was bombarded previous to its surrender. The Chinese laid down their arms and yielded themselves prisoners of war.

The Chinese commanding officers abandoned Port Arthur during the night of Nov. 6.

It is reported that some of the representatives of foreign powers will start for Peking immediately.

CHINA APPEALS FOR PEACE.

Other Great Powers Will Probably Intervene in the Korean War.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A dispatch to The Times from Tien-Tsin says that the representatives of all the powers were assembled by the Tsung-Li-Yamen to hear the Chinese government's statement respecting the critical situation of affairs. Prince Kung, president of the Tsung-Li-Yamen, calmly avowed the impotence of China to withstand the Japanese attack and appealed to the powers to intervene, saying that China was willing to abandon her sovereignty over Korea and to pay a war indemnity. The ministers applauded the frankness of this confession and promised to support China's appeal to their respective governments with a view of restoring peace in order to avert the dangers threatening all interests. The French minister believed in taking a leading part in the proposed intervention.

HIROSHIMA, Japan, Nov. 13.—Admiral Kuroki, under-chief of the Japanese forces, telegraphs as follows: "We destroyed all the torpedo boats in the bay and its approaches. We captured several torpedo boats and occupied the Chinese torpedo corps barracks without disturbing the mines. We also seized important maps. Our fleet and transports then entered the bay."

Sunday Night's Move.

CHEE-FOO, Nov. 13.—A Japanese fleet made a reconnaissance between this city and Wei-Hai-Wei Sunday night. The Man-Yung ships have joined the Pei-Yang fleet. It is reported here that the Japanese are still 30 miles from Port Arthur.

Obituary. Mrs. On Saturday, Nov. 10th, 1894, they laid away the body of William A. King, of Florida, Ohio. He was 70 years old. The funeral took place at the M. E. Church at Florida, Rev. F. E. Wilson officiating, and was interred in the Cole cemetery.

The little form once their joy and pride to them in sunny white, the sweet blue eyes are closed forever on earth, the sunny hair has been smoothed for the last time; the wee hands are folded over the baby heart now silent in death, the little feet are placed side by side in the tiny coffin, the coffin lid has been raised for the last look, parents and friends gather round and with mournful admiration, gaze on the lovely features of the dead babe, and now the lid is closed, the little casket is lowered into the silent grave, fresh earth is heaped over baby and sweet darling will rest until the resurrection morn. The parents return to their desolate home, desolate indeed since baby is gone; it is true she has gone home to God—safe over the river; the little feet can never go astray, but led by the gentle Shepherd who has said: "Suffer and forbid them not," she roams by the rivers of life, safe, safe forever, among the angels.

Recovered hearts, think not of the little form lying in the grave, but think, though the casket lies beneath the sod, the jewel has returned to God. Dear father and mother, think not of the empty cradle, the little baby crib, but think of the precious treasure you have in Heaven; think of the time when you may go to her though she may never more come to you. Father and mother, if you have no interest in this hope, desolate indeed must be your heart, but let the voice of your departed babe call you to seek through Jesus, "Mansion prepared for you" in her own glorious home.

As she came forth like a flower and was cut down, the lamp of life went out in childhood and she entered the Gates of Heaven, and thus another jewel has been set in Heaven. God grant that the friends as they approach the banks of the river may be able to brush the mist from their brows in safety and hail her in the "Sweet by and by."

Another treasure God has taken. To His flock he adds one more; Those teeming eyes we long to see, Now shine on the golden shore.

The ending of her voice has ceased, Her little hands now lie cold, Are folded on her breast.

Her little clothes are empty now, We look, but all in vain, To see our baby face once more, But she'll be with us again.

She has gone to a home more than this, With God she rests on High; With Him his story will be told, We can see her "by and by."
